Aloha Friend,

Due to your sign-waving, calling, friend-to-friend cards and many events you've invited our campaign to, The Washington Post has called our primary one of the Top 10 primaries in the country!

"Gov. Neil Abercrombie (D) is a familiar name to folks in D.C., having represented the Aloha State in Congress. Now he's an unpopular governor facing a tough reelection bid -- both in the primary and the general election. A recent poll, in fact, showed state Sen. David Ige with a double-digit lead over Abercrombie in the primary, 48 percent to 37 percent."

I humbly ask you to continue to push with me over the next 18 days as this is a very important period on the campaign trail as all candidates heat up their election efforts.

Of course, The Washington Post also noted how the governor has heavily out-raised our grassroots campaign, by a 10-to-1 margin and we are seeing this with his increased television, radio and print advertisements.

Let's increase spreading our message through our top strategy -- our grassroots efforts -- to show that Hawai'i is about earning the vote, not buying it.

Can you pitch in \$10 to help us reach even more folks across Hawai'i? We've come too far to stop giving it our all now.

As always, thank you for your support,
David
