Aloha Friend,

Our moms are our first and most important teachers. Tsurue Ige, Governor Ige's mother, grew up on a sugar plantation when schools only went through the 8th grade. But, she believed that anyone could aspire to their dreams. Tsurue sacrificed so much in order to provide opportunities that included achieving a good education for her six sons.

First Lady Dawn Ige is also an incredibly caring woman and mother. Utilizing her business and education background, she actively promotes healthy living opportunities through the Choose Healthy Now program, advocating for strong Hawai'i families and keiki. As the mother of Amy, Lauren, and Matthew, Dawn is dedicated to her family and our community through her public service in education and healthcare.

Mahalo, Tsurue and Dawn Ige, and all the mothers of Hawai'i, for teaching our keiki the values that make Hawai'i such a special place. Happy Mothers' Day to all!
