Aloha Friend,

Yesterday I released my plan "Engineering Hawaii's Future" that outlines the key issues that face our state.

My plan was developed after months of speaking with many people on each of our islands -- business people, community leaders, and people from all walks of life -- to hear their concerns and learn their ideas about what they want for the future, and how we can get there.

It was a result of a lot of open and honest communication, respectfully listening to all views, to try to come up with this plan of action to do the right thing, the right way.

As I have said throughout the campaign, and as I have done throughout my 29 years in the state legislature, I won't make promises to win votes. Engineering Hawaii's Future is a candid assessment of the work that lays ahead. If I am fortunate enough to be elected to lead our state, I will work with all people, regardless of party or ideology, background or geography to build a better Hawai'i for us all.

State government needs to work more like a business and deliver results on time and within budget. This is the creed I live by in my work in the private sector and it is the approach I have brought to my service in the state legislature.

I hope you will take a few minutes to look over my plan -- Engineering Hawaii's Future -- and share it with your friends and relatives before the August 9th primary election.

You have stood with me throughout this grassroots campaign as we've knocked on doors, sign-waved, made calls and talked about the issues over stew and rice. I hope you will stand with me again right now and contribute $10, or whatever you can, to get the message out about Engineering Hawaii's Future.

Mahalo,
David
