Aloha Friend --

Our Democratic candidate for Governor, David Ige, once again illustrated his straightforward, comprehensive, accountable leadership approach to addressing major issues impacting the state in tonight's KITV gubernatorial debate. David reinforced why he is the clear choice to lead Hawaii as its top executive for the next four years. Among many topics, David focused on several points important to the health, safety and well being of all of us.

David shared his role in the Legislature as one of the biggest advocates of the Kupuna Caucus and doubling funding for Kupuna Caucus programs over the last three years. He has advocated for changes to Medicare and Medicaid to provide funding for homecare services, allowing our kupuna to age in place.

He reiterated his support of investing in the public schools and channeling these resources directly to each school and classroom. David knows that a thriving educational system is the foundation of strong communities and a strong economy by providing an educated workforce.

David believes the State must closely regulate the use of pesticides, and that protecting our drinking water is a top priority. To further protect our environment, he will support efforts to improve our electric grid so residents can use all the renewable energy they want. He will continue to fund programs to battle the growing invasive species problem.

David closed the debate by thanking residents across the state for opening their homes, hearts and communities as he has campaigned for Governor. He said he appreciates every opportunity to sit down, share stories and mostly discuss what makes Hawaii special.

With just 35 days left until Election Day on November 4th, click here if you can contribute $10, $25 or $50 to ensure we can continue going into every community across the state.
