Aloha Friend,

Over six months ago, Governor Ige launched his first commercial during the primary campaign. Titled "Cannery," this touching spot highlighted Governor Ige's humble beginnings – from being part of a large family who struggled to make ends meet and having to work in a pineapple cannery to pay for his education.

The Governor's story resonates with the people of Hawai'i and it is important to continue our messaging until Election Day. His strong family values and the understanding of hard work, commitment and dedication is demonstrated every day through his leadership.

Governor Ige and Dr. Josh Green believe people who work full time jobs should not be struggling to make ends meet. They continue to advocate for a $15 minimum wage and paid family leave because it is the right thing to do. Their values are rooted in supporting hard working families of Hawai'i, and that is why we need their leadership.

Friend, we need your help to keep our message strong through Election Day.

This commercial is one way we are spreading Governor Ige's message to voters across the state, but the best way to share his message is through word of mouth. In the last week of the election, we sincerely hope you will share with your family and friends why you support Governor Ige and Dr. Josh Green and encourage them to vote #TeamIgeGreen!
