Aloha Friend,

There is so much to honor as we celebrate Prince Kūhiō, who served nearly 2 decades in Congress representing the territory of Hawai'i.

Prince Kuhio is best remembered for:

- Fighting for our Native Hawaiian brothers and sisters
- Working to pass the Native Hawaiian Homestead Act
- Revitalizing the historic Native Hawaiian Culture by restoring the royal order of Kamehameha
- Starting the first Hawaiian civic club.

Prince Kuhio Day
March 26, 2019

A black and white portrait of Prince Kuhio, a man with dark hair and a mustache, wearing a suit and tie.

The collective successes of Hawai'i and the people of our State are an example to the world. His determination to advocate for the people of Hawai'i and lead the charge to return Native Hawaiians to their lands is why we honor his legacy today. Because of Prince Kūhiō and many others, the Hawaiian culture and language continues to thrive.

Governor Ige honors the work the elder statesmen did for not only the Hawaiian culture, but also for the well-being of the Native Hawaiian community. Prince Kūhiō's passion to strengthen his people continues to live on and is expressed through celebrations throughout Hawai'i. It is days like today that reminds the community to honor, respect, and promote Native Hawaiian culture and sustainability.

Mahalo,
