Aloha Friend,

Yesterday, Governor David Ige assembled state emergency management leaders to assist with Kaua'i's response to serious flooding and landslides after record torrential rains of up to 27 inches fell on the island. The governor issued an emergency proclamation to provide relief to those affected by the flooding.

"We've mobilized to assist Mayor Carvalho and his emergency management team," said Ige. The Hawai'i National Guard, Hawai'i Emergency Management Agency, and the Coast Guard are all working together to aid the people of Kaua'i.

The Governor thanked the first responders who worked through the night to try to keep access open to the affected areas. "This is a team effort," Ige said. "Nobody goes through this kind of disaster alone." Governor Ige is monitoring conditions across the state as the weather system makes its way south along the island chain, and we at Team Ige are thinking of our friends and family on Kaua'i during this time.

Mahalo,

Team David Ige
